President Harold Bentley

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The other day I read an article from my files which discussed an educational topic somewhat different from the typical approach today. The title of the article was "Traditions in Stone." The theme was the idea that every college and university expresses its aspirations and achievements through architecture.

Mention was made of the impact that the buildings have made on generations of students in such places as The Harvard Yard, West Point, Southern Florida with its tower, the University of Virginia with its library and wall, and many others. Something permanent takes place in the minds of those who study in such locations. Good architecture is a fringe benefit.

When we look at our small college with its old and uninspiring buildings, all of them temporary, we feel that something is lacking. There seems to be no symmetry, no order, no plan that speaks a constant message to all. In a sense, we have little relationship to a meaningful past. All is prologue; all is prospect; nothing can be held on to by the successive student groups.

Yet we have done a great deal in this old building of ours. We have developed many basic principles of intellectual and social maturity that will abide. Our students have a reasonably good sense of freedom, of self-determination, and of strong hope for the future.

In our interaction with faculty, fellow students, and the disciplines that we study, we have already linked ourselves to the greatest tradition of all, growth and development with a sense of purpose in life. We achieved this in old buildings which seem tired and inadequate. We have done this and much more because we are developing a sense of destiny.

We know that we are approaching the end of this portion of the way. Immediately ahead of us are many new and wonderful things. We now realistically anticipate a new campus, new expansiveness, new standards made possible by new facilities. All will soon be new. Only one thing will be unchanged, that is our sense of direction. We have known all along where we were going. Only now do we see that we too will have visible reminders of our aspirations, those that are "Traditions in Stone."

The true traditions will still be in our students and our staff. We will never lose sight of the value of persons. But soon we will have spaces, buildings, facilities, and all the tangible things that add beauty and strength to our values.

You are among the last of those who will spend all your community college life in inadequate surroundings. Good luck to you as you go on. You truly deserve the best in the years to come. It has been a privilege to be with you in these two exciting years.

MEMORIAL

Jeanne Driscoll
1948-1967

Before writing this memorial, I searched through yearbooks, volumes of poetry, and literature that I thought would be appropriate. No past expressions of sympathy seemed as fitting as those of Jeanne's own father.

About his daughter he wrote:

"Jeanne had everything to live for, being a very happy girl, making friends easily, getting lovelier, smarter, and more lady-like as she grew older. Attending Northern Essex, associating with her fellow students and faculty members whom she liked, did so much for her! She was so proud of it all—looking forward to continuing her education and going on to teach. . . .

I enjoyed 'father and daughter' talks that are so unusual in most families. That made us closer to each other, but it makes me miss her more.

At the time of our great sorrow, Mr. Bentley . . . thru class officers, classmates and teachers were all so very kind."

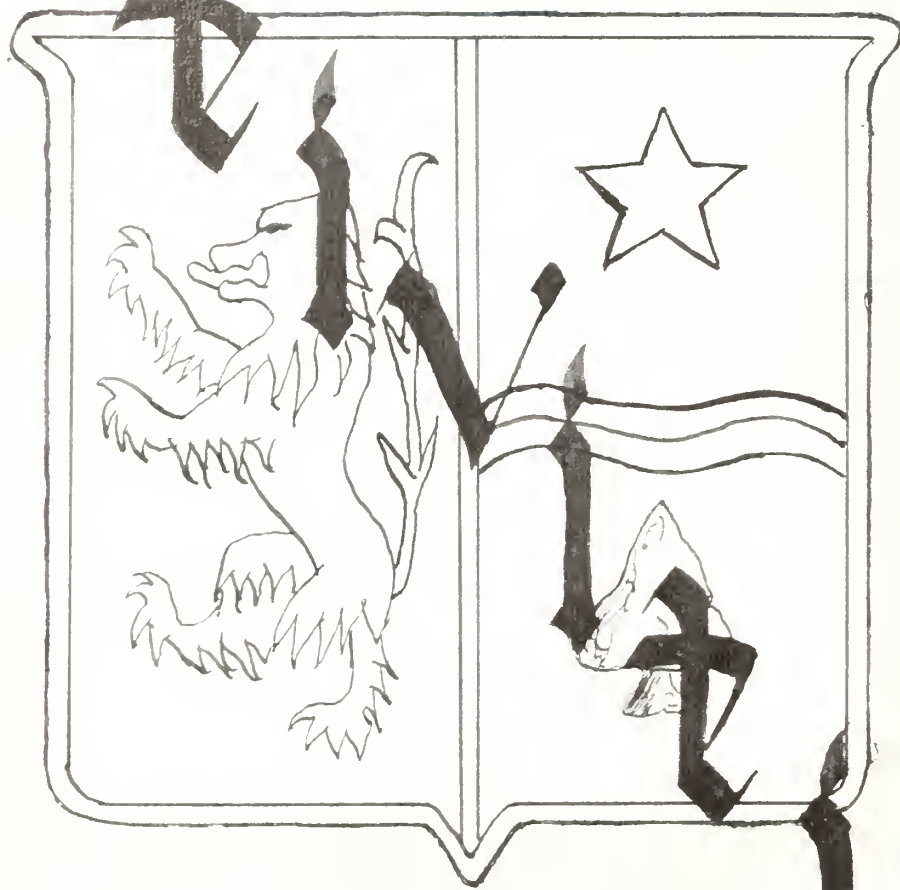

There is little more that can be said than the words of a father who loved his daughter so much. Death—especially of youth—is sorrowful. But the sorrow is felt by those who are left behind.

Whatever grief may endure, Jeanne was loved and had a happy life. The love she gave and received can never be the victim of Death.

(Mr. Dick Weir, the American Yearbook Company representative, provided many of the excellent candid pictures in this book.)

THANKS TO OUR GREAT ARTIST !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Stan (Stas') Swerchesky drew all the marvelous pictures for the divider pages, as well as the printing work and cartoons. (It may interest the reader to know that the dog who posed is the frequent visitor to the Student Lounge. This Irish setter is the official LUMEN model for 1968!)

We of the LUMEN staff hope you enjoy your book—part of your college years at Northern Essex. The memories you have we hope are very happy ones!

The Photography Club

The Photography Club, since its conception in 1966, has attempted to orient the novice photographer to the fundamental techniques of this exciting and creative field. In this regard, beginners have been instructed in picture-taking and camera techniques, film development, enlarging, and print making, as well as photo-finishing techniques.

The club's activities included a series of illustrated lectures based on materials provided by Eastman Kodak Company, presented by Mr. Paul, the Club's advisor, to the Club members and interested guests. A field trip to the New England Premier of "Photography USA" was held at the DeCordova Museum, in Lincoln, Mass. where more than 450 prints by 92 leading American photographers was held. The Club was host to Kenoza Camera Club's exhibition of salon prints which were displayed in the school library for two weeks. The Club was also invited to attend a Kenoza Club meeting and participate in inter-club photographic competition. A school-wide Photo Contest was also sponsored by the Club for the purpose of stimulating interest in photography among a wider group.

Students in the Club use their photographic talents for other school interests, such as the Observer, Public Relations, and the Lumen, and has worked on a brochure for the newly organized Nursing Program. Photographs seen in the college's publications were taken and processed by Photography Club members.

The Photography Club now looks forward to expanded facilities at the new campus and the increased opportunities to serve the needs of the faculty and student organizations in meeting their photographic needs.
